9.6 Inmate complaints to the Ombudsman

Policy summary

Corrective Services NSW (CSNSW) has a statutory responsibility to take all steps necessary to facilitate the making of a complaint by an inmate to the NSW Ombudsman (the Ombudsman). An inmate should be provided with information regarding access and the process for resolving requests and complaints with the Ombudsman.

A complaint may be made to the Ombudsman in writing, by telephone or in person when a staff member from the Ombudsman's office visits the correctional facility. The inmate should also be advised that communications between the inmate and the agency is not monitored or read by staff.

1 Inmate complaints to the Ombudsman

1.1 Policy

CSNSW has a statutory responsibility to take all steps necessary to facilitate the making of a complaint by an inmate to the NSW Ombudsman.

An inmate should be provided with information regarding access and the process for resolving complaints with the Ombudsman. The inmate should also be advised that any communication between the inmate and the Ombudsman is not monitored or read by staff.

A complaint may be made to the Ombudsman in writing, by telephone or in person when a staff member from the Ombudsman's office visits the correctional facility (refer to COPP section 10.8 Visits from officials, agencies and professionals). In seeking a resolution to a complaint, the Ombudsman's staff may telephone the correctional centre, or speak with staff and/or inmates during a visit to the centre.

CSNSW is required to provide all necessary assistance to staff from the Ombudsman's office. This includes providing access to inmates and staff, as well as to documents, records and files if requested.

Inmates should not be obstructed or prevented from telephoning or corresponding with the Ombudsman, regardless of whether they have not first attempted to resolve their complaint within the correctional facility.
