Our ref: GIPA22 [REDACTED]

Dear [REDACTED]

Formal Access Application - Notice of Decision

I refer to your Formal Access Application under the Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009 (GIPA Act) that you lodged with the Department of Communities and Justice (the Department) on behalf of the [REDACTED] which was accepted as valid on 12 September 2022.

Summary of your request

In your application, you requested access to the following information:

Statistical information regarding the following Corrective Services information for the financial years 2020-2021 and 2021-2022:

- Total Inmate population for each correctional centre
- Operational capacity of each correctional centre
- Number of employees in total for each correctional centre
- Number of use of force incidents for each correctional centre
- Number of assault on staff incidents for each correctional centre
- Number of assault on inmates incidents for each correctional centre
- Number of escape incidents for each correctional centre
- Number of contraband incidents for each correctional centre
- The number inmates that were subjected to segregation, isolation or monitored calls for each correctional centre
- Number of workers compensation claims for each correctional centre
- Total number of workers compensation claims with a breakdown of types of injury
- Total number of mental health workers compensation claims and length of time taken to return to work.

Searches for information

Under section 53 of the GIPA Act, the Department must undertake reasonable searches as may be necessary to find any of the government information applied for that was held by the Department when the application was received, using the most efficient means reasonably available to the Department.

Please be advised that thorough searches have been conducted by the below business units to find any information that falls within the scope of your application:

- Human Resources (HR);
- Corrections Industry & Capacity (CIC); and
- Corrections Research Evaluation and Statistics (CRES).

Decision

I am authorised by the principal officer, for the purposes of section 9(3) of the GIPA Act, to decide your access application.

I have decided:

1. Under section 75 of the GIPA Act, to create a new record to respond to your access application and under section 58(1)(a) of the GIPA Act, to provide access to that information sought in your access application; and
2. Under section 58(1)(b) of the GIPA Act that some of the information sought is not held by the Department.

The decisions to provide access to information and that information is not held are reviewable decisions under section 80 of the GIPA Act.

Decision to provide access to some information

In accordance with our obligations under section 53 of the GIPA Act, search requests were sent to HR, CIC and CRES who conducted internal searches and were able to locate and provide most of the information requested in your access application.

I note that the information requested in your access application is not information that is contained in a record that the Department already holds. However, I have taken into consideration section 75 of the GIPA Act, which provides that although there is no obligation to provide access to government information by way of creating a new record or document, an agency is not prevented in doing so.

Therefore, I have used my discretion on this occasion to create a new record pursuant to section 75 of the GIPA Act to respond to your access application and have decided under section 58(1)(a) of the GIPA Act, to provide access to the information sought in your access application.

Workers' Compensation Claims Figures – Information not within Scope

Please be advised that information which did not fall within the scope of your request has been removed under section 74 of the GIPA Act. As the search for statistical information relating to workers compensation claims was conducted based on cost centres within the Department, the results yielded other units which do not fall within the scope of your request. These units included courts and other internal business units.

While figures relating to workers' compensation claims from Community Corrections offices do not fall within the scope of your request, as they are Corrective Services units which work closely with the functions of correctional centres, I have decided to provide this information to you.

Please also note, the figures may include compensation claims that relate to past/historical incidents that may not have occurred in the relevant financial years of 2020/2021 and 2021/2022, however the workers compensation claims were lodged in those financial years.

The public interest test

In relation to the information that falls within the scope of your request, I have carefully considered your request in view of the objectives of the GIPA Act where you have a legally enforceable right to obtain information, unless there is an overriding public interest against disclosure of the subject information.

In deciding which information to withhold in full or in part, I was required to conduct a "public interest test" in accordance with the principles set out in section 15 of the GIPA Act, where the public interest considerations favouring disclosure of government information were weighed against those factors that do not favour disclosure. The following are a number of public interest factors I considered which favour disclosure of the information requested:

- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to promote open discussion of public affairs, enhance Government accountability or contribute to positive and informed debate on issues of public importance.
- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to inform the public about the operations of agencies and, in particular, their policies and practices for dealing with members of the public.
- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to ensure effective oversight of the expenditure of public funds.
- The information is personal information of the person to whom it is to be disclosed.
- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to reveal or substantiate that an agency (or a member of an agency) has engaged in misconduct or negligent, improper or unlawful conduct.
- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to advance the fair treatment of individuals in accordance with the law in their dealings with agencies.
- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to reveal the reason for a government decision and any background or contextual information that informed the decision.
- Disclosure of the information could reasonably be expected to contribute to the administration of justice generally, including procedural fairness.

The public interest considerations against disclosure that can be considered are those listed in schedule 1 and section 14 of the GIPA Act.

Please be advised that a very limited amount of information has been refused because it contains information where a public interest factor against disclosure, outweighs the factors in favour of disclosure.

Information has been withheld from disclosure under clauses 3(a) and 3(b) of the table to section 14 of the GIPA Act as it is information that would:

- reveal an individual's personal information; and
- contravene an information protection principle under the Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998 (PIPA Act) or a Health Privacy Principle under the Health Records and Information Privacy Act 2002.

Personal Information

As small amount of information has been withheld from disclosure under clause 3(a) of the table to section 14 of the GIPA Act because the information would likely reveal an individual's personal information. I am of the view in this instance that there is an overriding public interest against disclosing information that reveals an individual's personal information.

Information that has been withheld from disclosure under clause 3(b) of the table to section 14 of the GIPA Act is information, the disclosure of which, would contravene an information protection principle under the Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998. Section 18(1) of the PIPA Act states:

"A public sector agency that holds personal information must not disclose the information to a person (other than the individual to whom the information relates) ... unless:

(a) the disclosure is directly related to the purpose for which the information was collected, and the agency disclosing the information has no reason to believe that the individual concerned would object to the disclosure ..."

While your access application only requests de-identified statistical information, there is a strong risk of re-identification based on the data being considered for release. Re-identification can occur through linkages of de-identified data with other information or contextual indicators which can cause data to no longer be anonymized.

It is well accepted in the context of privacy, for information to be truly "de-identified", any personal identifiers must be permanently removed and re-identification, or constructive/deductive identification must be extremely difficult or near impossible. If this test is met, then the information will no longer be classified as "personal information" for the purposes of the PIPA Act (DMP v Sydney Local Health District [2021] NSWCATAD 246).

The case law in this area also indicates that if the information can be linked to, or connected to, an identifiable individual, it may be sufficient for it to be 'personal information.': CRP v Department of Family and Community Services [2017] NSWCATAD 164.

The Australian Privacy Commissioner has provided guidance on the test for determining if a person's identity is apparent or can reasonably be ascertained. "The test is whether identification is possible, by any person (or machine) other than the subject themselves. An individual can be 'identifiable' where the information is able to be linked with other information (not necessarily part of the information being considered) that could ultimately identify the individual."

It follows that it is possible that even if an individual or organisation collecting or holding information does not know the subject person's identity, and could not reasonably ascertain their identity from that information, they may nonetheless be handling 'personal information', because another audience or other contextual circumstances could make that link. For example, coded information may still be 'personal information', as there remains the potential of re-identification to a person or body with the means to link the code back to other identifying details.

In the current circumstances of your access application, information that has been withheld under clauses 3(a) and 3(b) is information that if released on an isolated basis, would not be considered "personal information", however, in the context of other information being released in the material, could reasonably likely result in the information "personal information". For example, if a correctional centre has a very limited number of employees and there are a limited number of workers compensation claims for that particular centre, then by providing that data, it may reveal an employee's personal information that they have a worker's compensation claim. On that basis, small figures (any numbers that yielded 3 and under) relating to number of employees in correctional centres and the number of workers' compensation claims of those centres have been redacted under clause 3(a) and 3(b).

After balancing the public considerations, I have apportioned significant weight to this public interest consideration against disclosure as the information contained in the material could reveal an individual's personal information, and individuals should have confidence in the department's commitment to compliance with legislative obligations and the information protection principles. Further, I place additional weight on this consideration, as the disclosure would be contrary to law, but for the GIPA Act.

Decision that information is not held by the Department

Some of the information requested under bullet point 9 of your access application is not held by the Department.

In processing your application, I have taken into account the obligations referred to in section 53 of the GIPA Act which states:

"53 Searches for information held by agency

(1) The obligation of an agency to provide access to government information in response to an access application is limited to information held by the agency when the application is received.

(2) An agency must undertake such reasonable searches as may be necessary to find any of the government information applied for that was held by the agency when the application was received. The agency's searches must be conducted using the most efficient means reasonably available to the agency.

(3) The obligation of an agency to undertake reasonable searches extends to searches using any resources reasonably available to the agency including resources that facilitate the retrieval of information stored electronically.

(4) An agency is not required to search for information in records held by the agency in an electronic backup system unless a record containing the information has been lost to the agency as a result of having been destroyed, transferred, or otherwise dealt with, in contravention of the State Records Act 1998 or contrary to the agency's established record management procedures.

(5) An agency is not required to undertake any search for information that would require an unreasonable and substantial diversion of the agency's resources."

A search request was sent to CRES in relation to the information requested about "the number of inmates that were subjected to...isolation or monitored calls for each correctional centre". However, CRES advised that this information could not be obtained as this data is not recorded in their system or on the Corrective Services Offender Integrated Management System (OIMS).

On that basis, in accordance with section 58(1)(b) of the GIPA Act, I have decided that the information sought under this point of your access application is not held by the Department.

Disclosure log

I have assessed that the information released in response to your formal access application is information that may be of interest to other members of the public and I note that in your application form you have consented to the details of your application being recorded in the disclosure log.

Therefore, the Department may decide to record certain details about your application in its 'disclosure log' (under sections 25 and 26 of the GIPA Act), which is available on the Department's website.

Processing charges

On 7 November 2022, a Notice of Advanced Deposit was sent to you which advised that processing charges were payable in the amount of $600.00. On 18 November 2022, we received your payment of the advanced deposit in the amount of $300.00. The balance of the processing charges in the amount of $300.00 is now payable. Before we can release the information to you, we will require the balance to be paid.

Review Rights

If you are aggrieved by any of the reviewable decisions in this notice of decision, you may seek a review under Part 5 of the GIPA Act, by requesting any one of the following:

- An internal review that must be lodged with Open Government, Information and Privacy within 20 working days of this notice of decision. You must lodge your internal review at the address shown at the top of the first page and must be accompanied by the appropriate application fee of $40.
- Alternatively, a request for an external review may be lodged with either the Information and Privacy Commission, or the NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal. Please note that you must lodge your request for an external review within 8 weeks of this notice of decision.

If you have any questions or concerns in relation to this matter, please contact the department on telephone (02) 9716 2662 or by email at infoandprivacy@dcj.nsw.gov.au.

Yours sincerely
